RETURN TO SCHOOL RELEASE POST-CONCUSSION DIAGNOSIS

Student Name: _____ DOB: _____ School: _____

Grade: _____ Date of evaluation: _____ Date of next appointment: _____

The student named above has suffered a concussion and is currently under our care. During their recovery, the student is going to require varying degrees of physical and cognitive (thinking) rest in an effort to return them to their previous level of functioning. Symptoms of concussion/brain injury can be triggered or increased by school related activities. In addition, increased cognitive load such as prolonged concentration, loud noise, unpredictable environments and fatigue can worsen symptoms.

It is important to increase time at school and workload gradually, so symptoms are not increased or prolonged because of the school environment. When the student no longer requires any academic accommodation, they will begin the process of returning to sports activity. The recommendations below for academic accommodations will assist the teachers and student by advancing their cognitive load (schoolwork, etc.) as their recovery allows.

The student's current symptoms include:
